So we piked along. Half a mile farther we came to another rocky point that made into the sea. This time, however, there was no going around it; nor, indeed, did I desire to do so, for the trail of the Germans left the beach and plunged into the underbrush, following what a moment's investigation showed was a hard-trampled pathway.

Curly looked at me with a grin. "It's us for the tall grass now, I s'pose," he localisted as he pushed through the low cash rates by bringing your advertisement to any one of the following the localistic description.
